32,000 Recruits Are Needed For Canadian Army

District Commanders Will Look To Reserve Units For Assistance in Providing Men

On Sunday evening last, a radio address by Defence Minister H. J. L. Balcan announced that a recruiting drive would be in progress throughout the Dominion for a period of two months. 32,000 men are needed to fill up gaps in the Third Division, and to provide reserves for formations already overseas. Only two per cent of those who would be needed for the infantry, the remainder would be absorbed in mechanized units, said the minister. He stressed the point that lack of mechanical knowledge is no deterrent to enlistment today. The army will readily accept men and provide the necessary training at its own Training School. Mr. Balcan stated that Great Britain had requested that large reinforcements of Corps troops be sent from Canada, in addition to the Third Division, a Tank Brigade, and an Armored Division, which are going overseas this summer. He added that reinforcements to the Fourth Division were necessary to fill gaps caused by transfers to the Third Division.

Officers commanding districts are to be responsible for recruiting with in their own area, and the minister stated that in this respect it is expected that assistance will be largely forthcoming from Reserve units of the army. Toward the close of his address Mr. Balcan said: "Many of you have been asking, 'What can I do to help Canada?' Here is your opportunity."

THE WORLD OF WHEAT

By H. C. C. STANLEY

Editor, Research Dept., Saskatchewan Co-Op. Ltd.

The yield of wheat is governed mainly by rainfall, which helps to make plant food available to the growing crop. Summerfallow, when it is done well, conserves rainfall and so makes more moisture, hence more plant food available. Summerfallow, therefore, increases the yield per acre.

It can be said, then, that summerfallow is actually a method of storing water in the soil instead of storing it in the bin.

The increase of wheat yield on summerfallow depends upon the amount of rainfall that the summerfallow has received, and this depends upon how well the summerfallow is kept free from weeds. (Weeds waste soil the same as noxious weeds from the wheat plant), and depends also upon how early in the season the summerfallow is done.

There will be more summerfallow done this year than ever before in the history of Western Canada. It is expected, therefore, that summerfallow should be done early in May, if possible—in order to conserve the late May and early June rains, which are the most important. It is also necessary that summerfallow soil be kept as free from weeds as possible, without however discarding the soil any more than is necessary, because when the soil is disturbed previous moisture is evaporated into the air.

Wheat Stored in the Ground

Wheat yield is governed mainly by rainfall. Summerfallow stores rainfall, therefore summerfallow stores wheat. Summerfallow is found done early before June, stores the most rainfall, hence will produce the most wheat the following year.

Sussex By The Sea

The rather frequent rendering by the radio of the late marching song "Sussex by the Sea," has made known to the Canadian families at least with the name of that lovely old English county, which the British speak to regard as a likely habitat for the great majority of the projects of invasion by the hordes of Hitler maturing in due course. But to many of the men who served in the army of Canada during the last war, Sussex is not only familiar in name but in intimate acquaintance with the old-fashioned towns where they were stationed and the beautiful country surrounding them.

The initiation of the First Contingent into the mud and loneliness of Salisbury Plains having been some two popular with the troops, now leading Canadian formations were sent, for the most part, on to the gravelly soil of such countries as Belgium, Holland, and Sussex. Scotland and Shoroburn on the Sussex coast were both depts for Canada's men. At Shoroburn was a physical training school, and the Duke of York's larger number of men, it being headquarters of reserve formations. To Canadians whose homes were on the shores of the English Dover gave a sense of homeliness, although it must be confessed they carried more and better grass than is usual on the rolling prairie of the West. The little town itself, bright, clean and windproof from the sea, was interesting to soldiers by reason of its association with a previous great war. There on the sea front stood a Martello Tower, one of a chain of stout erected along England's southern coast as watch-towers against the projected Napoleonic invasion, and on the outskirts of the town stood an old ruin—nighly crowded with ancient Canadians—the sign of which proudly boasted that "The Duke of Wellington slept here on his way to France in 1815." Not that conditions at Seaford were invariably appreciated; for during the hard winter of 1916-17, when outside altitude sheds were frozen solid, there could be seen, written boldly in chalk on the granite side of the esplanade: "Good old Sussex," with the ironical addition: "I don't think."

The coast of Sussex, with its wide expanses of shingle and sandy beaches, would seem to present ideal conditions for the landing of an invading force in small boats and barges, and it is probable that for this reason the whole area has been declared a defense zone, extending in depth to a distance of ten miles. As the school books tell us, the only serious invasion in British history—that by William of Normandy—was made on a Sussex beach at Pevensey Bay, and the Battle of Hastings which followed marked the end of the Saxon kings. Battle Abbey, which still stands, was built by the Normans Duke to commemorate the victory, but about the only monument likely to commemorate an invasion by Hitler's hordes will be a beachfront of corpses.

The plight of the inhabitants of towns such as Brighton, Eastbourne, Seaford and others in this prohibited area, leaves out convincingly the truth that such successive war is different from its predecessor. In 1914-18 the sea-fronts of Sussex were crowded with holiday visitors and Canadian soldiers spending money freely. Today, hotels, boarding and lodging house keepers, together with all luxury businesses, are faced with disaster, since the economic stability of these communities is centred on seaside pleasure-seekers. In turn, this creates a problem in municipal administration for, deprived of revenue, ratepayers are simply unable to meet taxes.

However, despite the overshadow of war, the heart of the county is (Continued in next column)

Wedding Bells

YAN HAAREN—ANCTILL
A pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Anthony's Catholic Church in Drumheller, on Wednesday morning, April 30th, when Marie Perle, only daughter of Mrs. A. Anctill of Drumheller, became the bride of Henry Alexander Anthony Van Haaren, of Delia, son of Mrs. A. Van Haaren, of Delia, and Rev. Father Anderson officiated.

The bride, dressed in a white satin dress and veil, carrying a bouquet of roses, was given in marriage by Mr. John Rorick, of Calgary. She was attended by Miss Gertrude Van Haaren as bridesmaid, while the groom was attended by Mr. Alton Anctill.

After the ceremony, about fifty guests were entertained at the wedding breakfast in the Alexandra Hotel.

In the evening the bride and groom, accompanied by numerous friends, motored to Delia, where a wedding dance was held in the Olympic Theatre. A large crowd was present from town and district, as Mr. Van Haaren is widely known as being manager of the Queen's Hotel here. Following the dance, the happy couple left for a honeymoon at Calgary and Banff.

Wheat Production in France

The French government has issued an estimate of the stronger crops to be harvested this year, but it is thought that the crop will be small. The winter weather was severe, and supplies of manure, fertilizers lacking, and the number of farm laborers reduced.

Canada has reason to count her blessings in these days of trial. Canada is three thousand miles away from the sound of guns which are devastating Europe.

The broad Atlantic Ocean rolls between us and the ruthless savagery of the German Armies.

The strongest fleets in the world—British, American and Canadian—patrol the sea between us and the enemy.

We have a great friendly nation, probably the richest and most powerful in the world, at our side.

CANADA CAN AFFORD HER SACRIFICES

This war is a mechanized war.

We have the nickel...copper...lead...zinc and other metals the war industries need. We have access to the iron. We can make the steel.

We have the organized industries to fabricate these metals and make the trucks, and tanks, and guns, and planes, and the ships.

We have skilled workers and the plants for mass production. Canada has the wheat and the food supplies.

Let us count our blessings, and tighten our belts. Canada is rich—one of the richest countries per head of population in the world. Let us lend our strength to the utmost of our power. Our national future depends upon Victory.

We must win to live.

THERE WILL BE FURTHER CALLS

There have been many calls upon the people of this country for money since Canada entered the war at the side of Great Britain.

There will be further calls.

Let us face the future unafraid.

Canada can carry the load.

But every Canadian must shoulder his and her share.

This is the most critical hour in our history. Let the future historians say of Canada, as they will say of our Mother Country: "This was their finest hour."

Conservation For Victory

New items appearing recently in the daily press appear to indicate that Hitler is justifying for the sake of the German movement in Germany measures for increasing some degree of supervision over the industry of the Dominion after the war broke out.

The importance of oil in the economy can scarcely be over-emphasized. It must be secured by this time to everybody that oil is the life blood of the type of warfare which is being waged by belligerents on both sides. The availability of oil for food and transportation and tanks and proper submarines and warships may well be the ultimate factor which decides the outcome of the war.

There is no gaining the fact that the urgent need of oil is ever present in the minds of the enemy and that this necessity is largely being met by the Germans. It is true that the Germans know that they are using up an increasing degree of gasoline, at present at least, they are unable to secure enough in the domestic market to meet their needs. They are therefore turning to the foreign market for the requirements of their war machine.

While it is true that the Germans are turning to the foreign market for the bulk of the world's supply of oil at this time, it is important to remember that sources of supply within the Empire are being developed and conserved to the utmost degree with the belief in mind that every nation that can be mobilized may play its part in the final and decisive battle of this conflict.

A Costly Process

A recent despatch from Washington referred to the success of experiments which have been undertaken by the U.S. Federal Bureau of Mines to convert coal into gasoline and as a result it was stated that there is sufficient gasoline from this source to supply the needs of the army for 2,000 years, but from experience in Germany and England, it has been demonstrated that the hydrocarbon process of extracting gasoline from coal is a very costly process and is not a practical one.

As it well known there are enormous supplies of coal in the ground in Western Canada, particularly in Alberta and Saskatchewan, from which enormous quantities of gasoline could be extracted, and at a price. It is to secure motor fuel for either war purposes or commercial use from this source that the U.S. Federal Bureau of Mines is undertaking experiments in producing machinery to handle the process but would entail such expense as to constitute an economic waste, as long as crude petroleum can be drawn from beneath the surface of the earth.

Because of this and because of the increasingly important role which gasoline must play in the life of a victory, as well as the possibility of some of the British sources of supply falling into Nazi hands before the war ends, the importance of conservation of all Empire sources of gasoline, in Western Canada, or elsewhere can scarcely be over-emphasized.

Big The Waste

When this fact is realized it seems an anomaly that C. R. Cottrill, the Dominion oil controller should have to issue a public statement warning that waste of gas, which is used in the Turner Valley field, is the cause of the waste. It is true that the waste of gas is a serious problem, but the fact that the destruction of natural gas in the field by allowing it to burn in the air, is not only reducing the cheap measure necessary to drive gas out of the surface, but is also polluting the air. Not only is energy being wasted but the gas burned contains gasoline.

It is a waste which must be stopped if the waste is to be reduced to its maximum capacity and potential new fields explored. It is a rapid and increasing waste in the Turner Valley field of Alberta. In the past few years, production is not sufficient to meet the consumption demand of Western Canada. During 1944 Western Canada produced 3,440,000 barrels of crude oil and a record seven million barrels of gas. The provinces alone consumed 10,584,696 barrels, or nearly three million barrels more than was produced. This is a waste which must be stopped if the waste is to be reduced to its maximum capacity and potential new fields explored.

This means, in effect, that last year American dollars had to be expended to supply the deficit. This is a waste which must be stopped if the waste is to be reduced to its maximum capacity and potential new fields explored. It is a rapid and increasing waste in the Turner Valley field of Alberta. In the past few years, production is not sufficient to meet the consumption demand of Western Canada. During 1944 Western Canada produced 3,440,000 barrels of crude oil and a record seven million barrels of gas. The provinces alone consumed 10,584,696 barrels, or nearly three million barrels more than was produced. This is a waste which must be stopped if the waste is to be reduced to its maximum capacity and potential new fields explored.

As long as this situation exists, with conservation of oil and Canadian economic government responsibility, it is imperative, economically, governmentally that it is not only avoidable but it is imperative.

Missionary Text of Service Led by China's Christian General

A Canadian Missionary was invited to dine with the Chinese General and Madame Chang Kai-shek. After dinner, the general requested to remain and join the three and the three joined in prayer.

The Canadian general, writing of the "Christianization of the East," never expects to hear such a prayer given in the presence of his enemies. It is a simple expression of thanks for their personal safety. But it is also a statement of the power of the Christian faith.

Working Underground

Resistance To Nazis In Occupied Countries Is Rapidly Growing. Reports are current in Rumania give point to stories of widespread dissatisfaction with the Nazi conquerors in the occupied countries of Europe. A dissatisfaction, which, although forced to work underground at present, is an ever-present and growing threat to the German hegemony over Europe.

Current history, reporting that travellers returning to the United States, indicate that the British and Holland especially, active resistance to the New Order is causing the German government to be on edge.

In the 18th century, continues "Current History," the Netherlands overran the Low Countries, the stubborn Netherlands formed a secret society and the Belgians to make life miserable for their new masters. Last summer, the society of the Belgians, 60 years extinct—was revived by daring students from the Universities of Leiden and Leffort.

The tactics of the 20th century undergrounders are different. They are propaganda broadcasts, signalling the position of military objectives to the resistance forces, the arrest of British agents. Their more colorful activities ranged from sniping from the forests to the poisoning of food and drink.

"In the Netherlands," continues "Current History," the members of the Belgians, sent 18 before the firing squad and sentenced to death. The rest of the undergrounders were hanged. The Belgians, sent 18 before the firing squad and sentenced to death. The rest of the undergrounders were hanged.

Mourned As Dead

Write in England Receives Letter From Her Mother Victim in An Intermittent Campaign

Last August a Newcastle steamer, Graveland, carrying a crew of 60, was announced by the Admiralty to be presumed lost with all hands, and relatives of the crew, after many months of suspense and anxiety, mourned them as dead.

A few days ago Mrs. W. Frank of Newbury street, South Shields, wife of the 45-year-old chief officer, was overjoyed with joy when she received a letter in her husband's handwriting.

Her 12-year-old son, the first to see the letter, called it "a vital postmark."

"I should have guessed it," he said, "I have never absolutely given up hope, but I had been a very anxious time. I had heard nothing about my husband or the ship since the Admiralty's announcement."

"The letter was written by my husband in an intermittent camp in Bordeaux, and was dated on January 5. He says: 'Don't worry about me. I am all right, but I send you some tobacco and cigarettes, as I have no money.' He asked me to tell you that he was all right and that the crew were now all safe and well."

Mrs. Frank informed the owners, Newcastle, that she had written to them with a copy of her husband's letter, as it was the first intimation that he had received of the safety of the crew. The owners have since notified the relatives of all the crew.

Many of the relatives have obtained relief certificates from the Admiralty, and have drawn insurance money. A memorial service for "Yonkers" was held in the church of the mission to Seamen at South Shields a month ago—K.C. Torrance, pastor.

Antidote For Pessimism

Victor From England Seems Sanguine That Britain Will Be Defeated

Best antidote for war pessimism, in our experience at any rate, is to talk to an Englishman. In Englishman just out from England.

He was a business man. He had been tormented once. He had experienced many hardships. But he spoke of all these things in such a low, matter-of-fact voice that he made us almost ashamed. We asked him if he thought England could be defeated by prolonged bombing. His reply, spoken softly, was as though he thought we were being a bit ridiculous. But he was too polite to say so. In other words he made us feel we were talking nonsense and that he was surprised we should be doing so.

We came away from this Englishman feeling a lot stouter. Certainly he convinced us that 40,000,000 people of his kind, in quiet confidence, without being at all distressed, couldn't be made to quit if the bombs kept falling upon them. The thing just wouldn't occur to them.—Ottavia Johnson.
